

About the Author

J. Mijin Cha has worked with local communities on issues of environmental justice in several countries, including India, Nepal, the United Kingdom, and the United States of America. She received her B.S. from Cornell University, her J.D. from the University of California, Hastings College of the Law, and her LLM and Ph.D from the University of London, School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS). Her Ph.D thesis was on comparative analysis of access to environmental justice movements in India and the US.

Dr. Cha worked at ICIMOD from October 2005 to May 2006 on issues of environmental justice, and currently resides in New York City where she works as a policy specialist.

