

Implementing Community Forestry and Joint Forest Management

Once the institutional question of who is to manage the community forest is answered and the power and benefit-sharing equations are understood, the real business of forest management commences. The role of planning is approached somewhat differently in Nepal and India.