

About the Author

Dr Madhav Bahadur Karki is a Lecturer in Range Management/ Agroforestry at the Tribhuvan University, Institute of Forestry in Pokhara. He has a B.Sc. in Agriculture from the Punjab Agricultural University, Ludhiana, an M.S. in Range Science from Colorado State University, and a Doctorate in Forestry/ Agroforestry from Michigan State University. He has been at the Tribhuvan University Institute of Forestry since 1983.

Dr Karki has published a number of articles on aspects of Forestry/Agroforestry and has carried out research on deforestation, improved management of fodder trees, and development of a model farm/forestry village.

The other members of the research team who produced this book are Jay B.S. Karki, who is a silviculturist, and Neeta Karki who is a Rural Sociologist.