Progress of the Himalica Programme in Gilgit-Baltistan, Pakistan

Outcomes

Increased resilience and better livelihoods for women and men in Gilgit-Baltistan, Pakistan

Increased income

(value-added sea buckthorn and yak-based products and related services)

Enhanced capacity

(of individuals and institutions to adapt to climate change and manage risks)

Improved productivity and production system dimensions

economic 0

environmental,

Social,

Improved support services

Better understanding of climate change risks and impacts

Strengthened markets and entrepreneurship skills

- Develop climate resilient management practices
- Establish demo sites
- Provide trainings
- Facilitate exposure and inter-pilot site visits
- Leverage technologies
- Raise awareness and facilitate exchange knowledge

- Strengthen groups, enterprises, and cooperatives
- Strengthen access to market, finance and information
- Facilitate interactions between service providers and users
- Increase flow of services, including extension services

- Raise awareness and conduct trainings on climate-resilient practices
- Demonstrate livelihood options
- Facilitatecommunity-ledmicro-planning
- Foster cross-learning and interactions
- Conduct training

   on enterprise and business development and provide post-training mentoring
- Support the setting up of micro enterprises
- Provide training on value addition, including processing and marketing techniques

Activities

